WasteCap of Lincoln
To Host EMS Seminar

This Fall, WasteCap of Lincoln will be hosting a one and a half day training seminar regarding the implementation of Environmental Management Systems (EMS) in Nebraska businesses. The purpose of the training is to familiarize business representatives with the EMS and ISO 14001 standards and to explore the economic and environmental values of developing such programs. With an ever increasingly global economy, many businesses have looked into developing the EMS or may be required by overseas vendors to be ISO 14001 certified. Very little training has been done in the state of Nebraska to keep our businesses competitive in this aspect of the global economy.

This will be one of the first local training sessions regarding EMS and ISO 14001 in our area. The target audience for the workshop will be environmental health and safety managers, supervisors, engineers, environmental consultants and others that may be responsible for implementing an EMS within their organization. Attendees will use a model of EMS to work through several case studies and walk through the steps of implementation. The EMS is not only beneficial for businesses with environmental management concerns, but can be helpful to businesses of all sizes and industry sectors, as well as schools, communities and local governments.
